INDUSTRY OVERVIEW

- Firms in the Cosmetic and Beauty Product industry generally engage in the development, marketing, manufacturing, sale, and distribution of personal care and beauty-related products, including perfumes, makeup items, hair products, creams, lotions, and skin care products
- The Cosmetic and Beauty Products industry is part of the Personal Products subsector, the least defensive sector in Consumer Staples
- The industry has underperformed as the COVID-19 pandemic began, especially for luxury products linked to travel and leisure activity
- Some key trends for the industry include a shift to more eco-friendly products and more product offerings for diverse populations
 - Eco-friendly personal products include natural ingredients from renewable raw materials, such as natural oils and agricultural plants
- The total value of M&A deals in the subsector dropped ~80.23% in CY2020 to ~$6.90 bn, but increased to ~$21.80 bn in CY2021

III. ACQUISITION DRIVERS

EXPOSURE TO DIVERSE SUPPLY CHAIN PIPELINES

A merger between Estée Lauder and COTY would bring increased specialized resources to produce product

- COTY currently manufactures ~85.00% of its product, and discussed plans of outsourcing more of its supply chain to other businesses to further optimize operations
 - EL has reported COGS of ~19.00% of revenue in FY2021, compared to ~31.00% of revenue for COTY
- Estée Lauder's new R&D and manufacturing facilities can complement COTY's lack of exposure to international markets and catalyze slowing EMEA and APAC sales

MARGIN AND STRUCTURE SYNERGIES

Estée Lauder can provide COTY with the expertise to improve its margins, therefore boosting operating profits

- COTY has stressed the importance of its ability to stabilize and improve profitability through the Transformation Plan
 - The program highlights the Company's vision of enhancing margin growth and overall cost controls
- Estée Lauder announced the Post-COVID Business Alliance Program (PCBA) in August CY2020
 - The program is designed to further enhance efficiencies and focus on growing areas of the prestige beauty market

PRESTIGE/MASS BEAUTY GROWTH OPPORTUNITY

COTY's prestige and mass beauty exposure could catalyze Estée Lauder's growth in multiple markets

- COTY derives ~63.87% of revenue from Prestige Beauty products, unlike Estée Lauder's focus on Mass Beauty
- The target age demographic for Estée Lauder is women aged ~35.00 ~55.00, unlike ~25.00 ~35.00 for COTY
- Estée Lauder has increasingly focused sales in the EMEA and APAC regions, compared to the Americas for COTY
- COTY maintains ~25.00 brand licenses, including popular brands used for Mass and Prestige Beauty products

PRESTIGE VS. MASS BEAUTY PER CAPITA SPENDING GROWTH (5-YR CAGR)

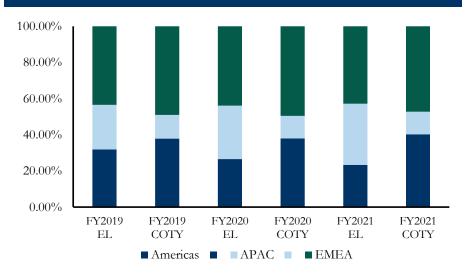

INCREASED EFFICIENCIES OF POINT OF SALE

Estée Lauder can use COTY's eCommerce and independent store model to improve operating costs

- Although both Companies earn revenue from eCommerce sales, COTY does not operate free-standing retail locations
- Estée Lauder plans to close locations to improve efficiencies
 - The Company projects a reduction SG&A expenses of ~$400.00 MM ~$500.00 MM within ~2.00 years
- This complements Estée Lauder's PCBA Program, stressing decreased physical store expenses, while still growing sales in both eCommerce and brick-and-border locations

Contribution Analysis

Implied Target Share Price Based on Contribution

RISKS

- Rising cases of COVID-19 or reimplemented lockdowns or restrictions may significantly affect the recovery and growth of sales for Estée Lauder and COTY, as many of their products are luxury goods or linked with travel and leisure activities
 - Since COTY sells more prestige beauty products than mass, Estée Lauder would become more exposed to this risk
- The merger adds ~$5.20 bn in long-term debt for Estée Lauder and heavily affects their cash balance, affecting overall liquidity
- If the acquirer does not capitalize off the innovation and product synergies from the deal, they may fall behind competitors
- If Estée Lauder continues to have management issues, it can affect its own reputation and affect COTY's product demand
- Supply chain issues and costs may affect Company margins and top-line growth if COTY's COGS do not go down if acquired
 - COTY's COGS were ~31.00% of revenue in FY2021, compared to ~19.00% for Estée Lauder, a more established firm

BULL CASE

- Estée Lauder uses COTY's luxury personal product portfolio to rapidly grow sales and reach new audiences
- Innovation for beauty care grows due to synergies from the merger and creates successful personal products
- COTY's COGS decrease dramatically from the acquisition to improve profits

BASE CASE

- Estée Lauder takes advantage of COTY's luxury personal product portfolio to grow sales and reach new markets
- The merger spurs new innovation for both companies and creates new products due to expected firm synergies
- COTY's COGS significantly decrease from the acquisition to increase overall bottom lines

BEAR CASE

- Estée Lauder fails to take advantage of COTY's product portfolio to grow sales and reach new demographics
- The merger does not influence new or successful innovations in beauty care for the Company and synergies are not realized
- COTY's COGS remain at similar levels prior to the merger, affecting bottom lines
